

MAUDE HALLIDAY IN TEARS. BERTHOLD POPPER ON TRIAL. R. H. MACY & CO.

Bennie Hall Swears that She is of Bad Character. Her Husband Testifies that He Wrote to Popper.

This was the fourth day of the sensational Halliday-Schuldwachter $50,000 breach of promise and betrayal trial, and long before Judge Eldersheve took his seat in Part I of the Superior Court the room was filled with a curious crowd.

When the case was adjourned last night witnesses had told of a number of drinking expeditions that the slight, pale-faced plaintiff was said to have taken part in, and Jerome Finck had sworn to having had joyous relations with her.

Lawyer Grant completely rattled some of the witnesses for the defense, and in all the plaintiff probed by the evidence.

The defendant, Charles Schuldwachter, who was forced to leave court yesterday on account of illness, was in court bright and early, and said he felt very much better. He will again go on the stand today.

Miss Halliday walked into court shortly before it opened on the arm of her father. She looked pale and worn and appeared very nervous. Her father, who was again in the courtroom, with Miss Halliday's sister and a party of friends. The little one cried constantly.

The first witness called this morning was Rev. Dr. S. Gregory Lyons, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, at the corner of Eighty-ninth street and Madison avenue.

Dr. Lyons was called by the defense and Lawyer Grant opened. He had hardly asked the witness any questions regarding Miss Halliday when Mr. Lyons said he belonged to his church, when Lawyer Welch offered an objection, inasmuch as the lawyer for the plaintiff was trying to establish the character of Miss Halliday.

After a worthy encounter, Lawyer Grant ended the trouble by withdrawing the witness. After his withdrawal he shook hands with both Miss Halliday and her father.

Charles H. Hallock, superintendent of Stern Bros. store, was next called. He testified that Miss Halliday had been employed in the store from November, 1890, to some time in 1891.

The defendant was recalled and asked to produce certain letters in court. Schuldwachter said he would do so if he could find them.

THOUGHT IT WAS DYNAMITE. Amateur Photographer Miley Created a Panic in Delmonico's.

Stock Broker "Jack" Miley is said, unofficially, to have announced his intention of going out of the amateur photography business.

Last night Miley loaned his camera on a table at which Louis Appolwaid was eating his supper in Delmonico's.

The diners, mindful of the escape of Booth, who risked his life in a park in the same place by firing at a man from a big "six-shooter," imagined that some new Anarchistic plot had reached its consummation.

No time was lost in getting away from the scene of the supposed danger. Miley was upset, dishes scattered about and pandemonium reigned.

When the smoke had partially cleared away, and order was in a measure restored, Charles C. Delmonico cautiously peered into the room.

Mr. Delmonico ordered the thoroughly disconcerted Miley to leave with his camera and never to visit the place again.

A "Grip Cold." Testifies to Consumption Checked—Succeeded by Hood's Cures. I cannot erase Hood's Sarsaparilla enough. It is a wonderful medicine, it cures all others for curing "the grip," I was troubled with a bad cold, very different from the other colds. I took medicine, but it didn't do any good. My folks thought I was leading to consumption. At last I read of people who were cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and so I thought I would try it. After using two bottles I began to gain and the third bottle cured me entirely. Miss MARY VILLAS C. ROUSE.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. Sold by all druggists. Spec.
